Stelios nets himself another business

THE march of easyJet founder Sir Stelios Haji-ioannou's orange empire goes on with the launch of easyTennis, which matches players of similar abilities on local courts. The brainchild of doctor-turned-poker-player-turned-entrepreneur Ganesh Rao, the business is colourfully described as being “like a ‘Tinder for Tennis’... but without the selfies”.

■ READER Tim Baros writes to tell Spy he received a rejection for a job at the Financial Conduct Authority at the weekend. The banking consultant was shocked to receive the bad news on a Sunday. Sounds like a lucky escape.

The future is orange: easyTennis is the brainchild of Ganesh Rao, seen here on-court
