EasyJet reaches pre-Covid heights

SUMMER bookings with easyJet are ahead of pre-Covid levels and CEO Johan Lundgren says the airline is outperforming expectations.

Since January, the budget carrier has seen a “strong and sustained recovery”, he noted, while summer bookings from the last six weeks were up on the same period in 2019. The firm now expects pre-tax losses for the six months to March 31 to fall from £701million to £565million, beating market predictions.

It has hedged 64 per cent of its second-half fuel requirements to shield itself from rising prices.
